25 - 27 March 2022

CEREMOANING is a place for collective grief. It's a time to come and moan with each other, in the joys and pains of letting ourselves grieve together. Most of us are not allowed proper spaces to process loss, to be with what's lost: barely on our own, and even more rarely in community.

CEREMOANING is a place to gather and practice just that. Spend deeper, thicker time with the people and things we've lost, with the continuous transformations of our relationships with them.

We start in small groups, small circles. Each of us chooses one person, one thing, that they've lost, that they are grieving, and shares the story of this relationship. It's a way to invite our invisible loved ones in, to make them part of the group, to experience the liveliness of those connexions: what does this person or thing make me feel, and do, and say, right now?

For the second part, each participant who feels like it, is invited to create a small ceremony to honour those relationships that matter to them. Everyone who is present joins in, as a co-maker and/or as a witness.

Thu. 24 March 15:00 - 19:00
